About Workhouse Arts Center

The Workhouse Arts Center (WAC), a project of the Workhouse Arts Foundation, is one of the nation's largest and most innovative adaptive reuse arts centers, providing high-quality, interactive, multidisciplinary arts experiences for 100,000+ visitors annually at our 55-acre campus. Founded in 2001 to transform the abandoned District of Columbia's Correctional Facility into a cultural center, WAC offers a broad array of free and affordably priced arts experiences including: multidisciplinary workshops, artist studios, galleries, and exhibitions, year-round education, and outreach programs, performing arts presentations and productions, community events, the Lucy Burns Museum, and our Military in the Arts Initiative.

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

We firmly believe that a dynamic community arts organization reflects the robust diversity of the region that it serves and the art forms it supports. At WAC, we strive to infuse equity, diversity, inclusion, and access at the core of our programs and initiatives so that individuals from all backgrounds can find artistic opportunity on our campus. We prioritize creating and maintaining professional, educational, and creative environments that are welcoming, representative, and inclusive, and we are committed to meeting these ends through collective and inclusive action. It is through these efforts that WAC can successfully drive authentic, sustainable, and accessible community impact through the arts.
